

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An artificial baby-feeding nipple including a substantially solid nipple portion with one or more ducts formed therethrough for conveying fluids through the nipple. The nipple is radially compressible so as to prevent passage of 5 fluids through the one or more ducts when so compressed through use of a material having a low durometer material.